Assignment 3

Create a 3 page website that shows and describes some of the differences between good websites and bad websites. Each of these pages should have the same look and feel to them. Each page should have the same key elements as the sample page that we created in class.

Each page should have a wrapper, header, navigation bar, a content area (you could create a two column content area if you like) and a footer.

In the footer list the class name and date and your name.

Your home page should display purpose of the site and links in the navigation bar to the other two pages.

The good page will list the examples of 2 good pages you have found and providing a links to those pages. Also provide a brief paragraph that describes the good elements to pay attention to.

The bad page will list the examples of 2 bad pages you have found and providing a links to those pages. Also provide a brief paragraph that describes why you think these are poor example of web design.

Be sure to include:

Master page

3 pages one for home, one for good pages, one for bad pages

A style sheet page

Make this an example of a good site that has elements of good design

Use Menu for the navigation
